This 28-page magazine for young people in foster care is a companion resource to the training course Teenagers in Foster Care – Promoting Positive Relationships. It is the perfect tool to use to build on the issues covered in the course in direct work with young people. Packed with quotes from young people, foster carers and social workers it explores issues related to promoting positive relationships for young people. It covers: moving, trust, school, friends, social workers, living in foster families, health, sex, risky business and much more!

Teenagers are the hardest group to foster and have high rates of placement breakdown. These new resources from Trust for the Study of Adolescence (TSA) make a major contribution to supporting young people in foster care at a time when improving services is in the spotlight.

Teenagers in Foster Care: Promoting Positive Relationships

The course consists of four sessions:

1. Making sense of adolescence – Adolescent development and fostering
2. Trust me – Developing positive relationships;
3. Everyone has a past – Getting off to a good start;
4. Making a difference – Promoting social relationships, education, health and wellbeing.

This 182-page training manual provides all the material needed to run four 2-2½ hour stand-alone sessions, or a two-day programme. Includes a CD with PowerPoint slides and handouts.

Getting Along

A magazine for young people in foster care

The magazine has also been designed to work as a stand-alone resource for young people and is ideal for foster carers and social workers as well!

The magazine will help social workers and foster carers to increase their understanding of what young people need and feel, and then to use with children in placement –
